

USSC bestows Bertucci Award to Randy Wright

During the Sign World International Show in Atlantic City, N.J., the United States Sign Council gave the highest honor it can give to any individual to Randy Wright of RKW Consulting in Montoursville, Pa. The USSC presented him with the Andrew D. Bertucci Memorial Award.

Randy has been involved in the USSC since its inception and has volunteered tirelessly to further the work of the sign council in the areas of electrical and fire safety. He represents the council on numerous related boards and code panels, such as Underwriters Laboratories and the National Fire Protection Association. He currently is a consultant to the USSC assisting members with any problems they may encounter in the areas of electrical and fire safety. Recently, Randy has volunteered to assist with the week long crane certification classes held during Sign World International.

This award honors Randy as an individual who has shown extraordinary service to the organization and whose work has made a significant contribution toward the betterment of the sign industry. The award is not given on a regular basis, but rather is awarded only when outstanding service needs to be recognized.
